Charlie graduated from Oxford University with First Class Honours in Archaeology & Anthropology, ranking second in his year. Following a three-year career as a researcher at Ipsos UK, he subsequently completed the GDL and BVS at City University with a Diplock Scholarship from the Middle Temple. During this time, he also worked as a Visiting Lecturer in Public Law at City University.

Before commencing pupillage, Charlie completed a traineeship at the European Court of Human Rights as a judicial assistant to the Vice President of the Court.

Charlie accepts instructions across all Chambers' areas of practice.
