Vishnu graduated with an MA in Classics from Queens' College, University of Cambridge. He then read the GDL at City University, with Distinction, and completed the BTC at BPP as a Lord Denning Scholar of Lincoln's Inn. Whilst undertaking the GDL his paper on vicarious liability was shortlisted for the Lincoln's Inn law prize and published in the Lincoln's Inn Student Law Journal.

Prior to joining Chambers, Vishnu was a Harold Fox scholar of Middle Temple, for which he spent 10 months working at Stockwoods Barristers LLP, in Toronto, Canada. He worked closely with the commercial partners on cases of fraud, insurance, and company law. He also co-authored a paper on defamation law, which was delivered at the Law Society of Ontario Symposium.

Vishnu also undertook a 6-month placement at a leading litigation firm, where he worked on group action litigation matters, developing his expertise in this core practise area of Chambers.

Vishnu is open for instruction across all areas of Chambers' practice.
